Q: JQuery Convert to array I have the following values: var list = $("#list").val(); var N = list.length; var listArray = new Array(N); $.each(list, function (i, v) { listArray[i] = v; }); I would like to convert listArray to a string, to display it into a spinner: var list2 = listArray.join(""); I'm expecting "a1, a2,... aN". I have a console.log("listArray = ", listArray); It's OK, it displays "a1, a2,... aN" But list2 does not change (it still displays a1, a2,... aN). What am I doing wrong? A: You aren't changing listArray, you need to actually assign the result of the join: var list2 = listArray.join(""); // ^---- Change this line Otherwise, you are just iterating over a new Array each time the $.each is called. The result will be an empty string, because you are joining an empty Array. You don't really want to assign to an Array variable anyway, in inflammatory reactions. The leukotrienes are potent mediators in a large number of inflammatory and immunological processes. They are derived from polyunsaturated fatty acids by the action of enzymes including the 5-lipoxygenase and the myeloperoxidase. The synthesis and the degradation of these metabolites have been studied extensively in biological fluids and tissues to identify the markers of disease and to assess the efficacy of the drugs to control inflammatory conditions. In this review, we will present the recent advances in the research on the BOSTON -- The Bruins earned the road victory and prevailed for the 10th time in 11 games, but their massive comeback came with a few bumps along the way. A major defensive breakdown by defenseman Dennis Seidenberg and a pair of standout individual performances by Boston's forwards set the stage for two early goals, and the Bruins began their stunning march up the standings by rallying for a 4-3 win over the New York Rangers at TD Garden on Tuesday night. Bruins coach Claude Julien complimented the play of his defense, which limited New York to only one power play goal and paid dividends on a night the Rangers were 2 for 5 on the advantage. But it was a pair of goals scored by the Bruins' top forwards that showed their three-game win streak. David Krejci scored on a breakaway at 7:01 of the first period, then Brad Marchand's goal at 6:42 of the second sealed the win. Torey Krug and

Jordan Caron gave Boston a 3-0 lead in the first, with each one coming in the first period. Seidenberg's late-game play was a key factor in allowing Chris Kreider to score on a second-period power play at 15:06 of the third for a 3-1 lead. Krug had the only goal in a 3-2 loss to the Islanders on Friday, a third-period tally from rookie Anders Lee. He also had the first of two goals in last Saturday's win over the Devils. Krug scored in the first period Tuesday to extend the 3-2 lead. Marchand had his fifth goal of the season in the first period. Mark Recchi, Patrice Bergeron and Tim Thomas each had assists for the Bruins, who remained undefeated at home in 2013-14. Aleksander Barkov, who scored in the first period of Friday's win
